Council President Lobbies State Leaders on Behalf of San Diego

SAN DIEGO – Council President Scott Peters travels to Sacramento this week with a delegation of local officials to lobby on behalf of San Diego’s open space and infrastructure needs, as part of the League of California Cities Legislative Action Days.

Peters, who serves as San Diego’s representative to the League of Cities, joins Councilman Jim Madaffer, First Vice President of the Board of the League of California Cities.

San Diego’s representatives will focus on several pieces of City-sponsored legislation, including Senate Bill 373, sponsored by Senator Christine Kehoe, creating dedicated open space within the City limits. Peters and Madaffer will also advocate on behalf of two local infrastructure projects, Interstate 905 and the La Jolla Ecological Reserve Stormwater project.

The League of California Cities is an association of local officials representing 478 cities, aimed at influencing public policy affecting municipal government. For more information, visit their website, www.cacities.org.
